On about 7 January a North Korean artillery unit totalling about 2,600 men re-entered North Korea from China. The unit was trained and equipped by the Chinese Communist Army. The platoon commanders of the unit are Koreans who previously served in the Special Army Groups of the Chinese Communist 3 and 4 Field Armies. Their equipment included 12 field pieces, 20 mountain guns, many heavy field pieces, mortars and chemical guns (sic), totalling 117 pieces. The unit officers had 80 days' training before going into Korea.
